Metro Hopluk made application for the purchase of Lots 19 and 20 Block 4 Plan 6445V.

A copy of the report of the Inspector of Municipalities as regarding Wainwright was submitted to Council.

Moved by Coun. Robinson—That the report from the Deputy Min. of Municipal Affairs be filed—Carried.

The Committee on Public Works presented their reports as to the progress of the authorized work.

We your Committee on Public Works beg leave to submit our report on the work authorized by your Council.

The cement sidewalk and gutter on Second ave. the contract for which was awarded to A. Love has been finished and ready for the approval of your Committee as being finished in the most workmanlike manner, the contract price being $942.50. Crossings were put in by consent at Dupre's at a cost of $16.64 Defences $8.32 and at Messiers $8.32, which is to be paid by the parties in question by agreement made with them by your Committee, and we would recommend that steps be taken to collect same at once as agreed.

The Fire Hall work was done by day work and a very satisfactory and workmanlike job was done under the supervision of Mr. John Taylor, all the available figures are not yet forth coming but your Committee has authorized payment for labor to the extent of $371.89 which is in full the cornice was in bad shape. This was ultimately repaired at a cost of $26.00 for labor. The bill for material which is not large has not been presented. The material the greater part of which was brick and lime, only part of which has been presented amounts to $276.90 and we feel sure we will quite keep within our estimate.

Our streets and sidewalks have had considerable attention and are in fair repair, the new grading on several streets has been a considerable improvement and reflects credit on our Utility man who has that in charge under your Committee's supervision.

Several old sidewalks have been resurfaced and are now in a presentable shape and we expect to make further showings before freeze-up judging from the efforts put forth by the Utility man and the manifest interest shown we would recommend that he be granted $50.00 extra allowance for the work he has performed without asking for assistance, which really should have been afforded.

Moved by Coun. Robinson—That the report of Public Works Committee be adopted and recommendations carried out—Carried.

The Finance Committee reported having received the order for approval of the Financial Programme as submitted, accompanied by a letter congratulating the Council on the splendid progress being made, from the Board of Public Utility Commissioners.

We your Committee on Finance beg leave to submit to the Mayor and Council, order No. 4805, from the Board of Public Utility Commissioners for the Province of Alberta approving of the particulars of the scheme of assessment and taxation of the Town of Wainwright for the year 1928, also its estimate of revenue and expenditure for said year, and would recommend that the By-law Committee be instructed to prepare a By-law authorizing the levying and collecting of taxes for the year 1928 on the terms set forth in the accompanying programme, which has met the approval.

We your Committee would also recommend that owing to the fact that the power house encroaches on property.

MANY ELEVATORS BUILT IN WEST

GRAIN STORAGE CAPACITY HAS BEEN GREATLY INCREASED DURING YEAR

WINNIPEG Man.—One hundred and eight new elevators were built at country points on the Canadian National Railways this year according to T. P. White, Superintendent of Car Service for the Western Region of the Company. These provide an additional storage capacity of 3,566,000 bushels divided among the Prairie Provinces as follows: Manitoba 21 elevators with 74,000 bushels; Saskatchewan 14 elevators with 546,000 bushels; Alberta 69 elevators with 2,276,000 bushels.

The capacity of the elevators at the Canadian head of the lakes, namely, Port William and Port Arthur, Ont., during the crop season 1927-28 was 72,540,000 bushels with new elevators and additions to existing elevators the capacity for this year's crop at those ports will be 86,000,000 bushels in elevator space. The lakehead is the largest grain receiving terminal in the world.

On the Pacific Coast, namely at Vancouver, Victoria, New Westminster and Prince Rupert, the capacity of the elevators last year was 9,795,000 bushels. This capacity will be increased this year to 14,175,000 bushels, an increase of 4,380,000 bushels.

The Dominion Government, under the jurisdiction of the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada, operates interior storage elevators at Calgary, Edmonton, Moose Jaw and Saskatoon with a combined capacity of 12,000,000 bushels. There are also private elevators doing a large amount of business in the Calgary, Edmonton, Moose Jaw, Saskatoon and Wainwright districts, with a capacity of 11,192,000 bushels.

LOCAL W.I. HOLDS SUCCESSFUL CLINIC

SIXTY-SIX INFANTS MAKE BUSY DAY FOR EXAMINING HEALTH NURSE

A very successful baby clinic was held on Monday last under the auspices of the local branch of the Women's Institute, when no less than sixty-six babies and little ones of pre-school age were examined by Nurse Emerson and Davidson, of the provincial Department of Health.

The U.F.W.A. restroom was secured and put in readiness by Mrs. A. Haney and Mrs. W. Goulet (the committee in charge) who did this work with credit to themselves and the Institute to which they belong. Tea and light refreshments were served to the mothers and visitors, this part of the day's proceedings being under the efficient management of Mrs. A. Laessle and Mrs. A. E. Robinson.

The committee received from the nurses officiating, and the words of appreciation from mothers of the wee ones were very gratifying to those in charge, and well repaid them for their efforts. The W.I. has co-operated with the provincial government in many lines of work, but in none that is more worth while than this—that of guarding the health of the rising generation.

The measure of success achieved by this undertaking (the first baby clinic to be held in Wainwright) gives the Wainwright W.I. courage to make plans for the holding of another such clinic next year.

Dependability

Firestone engineers found that the life of a tire depends as much upon the flexing life of the cords of the carcass, as upon the toughness of the tread.

To provide extra strength, stamina, and long wear, Firestone dips the cords of the carcass in a rubber solution. This saturates and insulates every strand of every cord, minimizing internal friction and gives thousands of extra miles. The Firestone Dealer in your locality will gladly serve you, and save you money.

Rose laughed happily and caught his hand in hers. Do you know Chuck you're the first man that's ever been in my room. It does seem sort of funny. I don't know whether it's right or not. She looked at Chuck appealingly, as though for confirmation of her unbounded confidence in him.

"Sure it's all right honey" Chuck assured her. "I wouldn't do nothing in the world to hurt you, honest. He put his arms about her tenderly certain now of his ground.

Suddenly Rose broke loose from his clasp gasping "Heavens Chuck the coffee!" She rushed over to the burner, snatching the towel on her way and reached for the pot that was already boiling over and bubbling on the plate.

"Let's forget the java, honey" Chuck reached over and took her hand from the cup facing her about "I gotta leave you pretty soon I gotta business date or two."

Rose frowned not at all understanding what was going on in Chuck's mind. In fact she was a little hurt that he paid such small attention to all her ministrations and yet, at the same time her heart jumped with joy for she believed that it was because Chuck thought most of her. Then he did of the coffee that he had to forget it. And so she allowed him to draw her closely to him.

Chuck's smile was a happy one, for he was confident now that Rose was his for the asking. He sat down on the bed pulling the girl beside him and put his arms about her. He drew her face up to his and kissed her again and again. For a moment Rose returned his kisses. It was so thrilling to sit there in the arms of the man she loved and who she believed loved her.

But as his breath flamed hot on her neck, and his kisses grew more passionate Rose turned suddenly and looked into his eyes. She drew back startled, as she suddenly realized that what she saw there was not the love she had believed but a calculating coldness that frightened her. She tried to pull away, but Chuck's arms only closed about her in a tighter grasp. Frantically she pushed with futile hands at his face to tear his lips away from hers. Chuck stared at her at last in bewilderment.

"What's the matter kid? Don't you love me?" he questioned frowning.

But Rose had jumped to her feet and was standing, leaning against the washstand her eyes bright with tears. She shook her head, gazing with hurt looks at the man before her. Her slight body trembled, her breath came quick and short. No one had ever kissed her the way Chuck had, and she could not realize what he had meant. But she only knew from that look she had seen on his face that there was something strange about the entire situation.

"Aw jeez Babe, I didn't mean nothing wrong. I'm sorry. Come on, kiss me and tell me you'll forgive me." For the moment Chuck's face was soft and tender as he looked at the slender golden haired figure before him. He decided to try new tactics. Maybe she needed a little coaxing—maybe he had been a little hasty. And so he rose and put his arms about her and kissed her very sweetly.

"You're a sweet kid, honest" Chuck brushed back the curly hair that fell in a mass of ripples all about the slender oval face. But that appealing look was too appealing and Chuck's lips were once more covering her eyes, her cheeks, her mouth.

"Chuck please, you mustn't! You mustn't Rose tried to pull herself away. "Oh please Chuck."

But the time was growing short and Chuck knew that it was almost the hour for his rendezvous and he had no intention of walking off and leaving this girl after he had spent so many evenings just being nice to her and playing up for his one moment. And so he drew more surely towards the bed his arms clasped about her like hands of iron.

"No! No! No! Rose shrieked. Her tiny fists beat a futile tirade on his chest, struggling impotently against a fate that seemed almost marked out for her. Blindly she battled and as she sobbed she remembered the words of Mamie uttered earlier in the evening.

"She had been a fool to trust herself alone with this man. All the past warnings of the girls around the cafe flashed through her mind. She must do something and yet she could not free herself. Desperate she flung out her arms behind her. Her hands caught on the edge of the washstand balancing her for a moment. Sudden-ed to be moving a little more now. She must find some means of escape from this man who might suddenly rise up and pursue her.

Mechanically she picked up the clock and set it back on the table with trembling hands. She must hurry. Her bag—where was her bag? She would have to pack her clothes with her. She mustn't leave a thing behind—not a thing! No one must know where she had gone; but where should she go? There was no place she knew it was late.

The Tenderloin at night terrified her. But she must go. The sheer feeling of being able to move added an impetus to her steps. She searched about and found an old imitation-leather bag that she had brought with her when she had first come to New York.

The search did not take many moments for her belongings were pitifully few. As she threw them into the satchel, two large tears rolled down her cheeks but she brushed her hand across her eyes. She drew on her coat wrapping it closely about her and pulled a tight black felt hat down over the soft curls. Grasping the satchel she made for the door and opened it. She paused only a second to look at the figure stretched out there on the floor. Then in terror she fled closing the door behind her.

Down the stairs she was descending, silently glancing back as though she feared some one might be following her every moment. Her shadow on the wall dancing made her heart leap up into her mouth. She ran down the last flight of stairs, flung open the door and looked up and down the street. Not a soul in sight—only the black darkness of the night. The dripping rain splashed into the still puddles. An elevated overhead cut the air with a shrill grinding on the wet rails. The noise startled her and with a quick stop she was out and running hastily along the gleaming pavement.

CHAPTER IV

Through the thick white mist that still hung heavy despite the slackening rain, the hands of the tall tower clock were barely discernible. Only the round orange face that shone like a sallow moon in a pale sky was visible. But now the clanging bell tolled out two short beats and then lapsed back into a death-like silence. Uptown the lights about Broadway were still twinkling but down here through the Tenderloin everything seemed to sleep—everything that is save the police man on the beat the corner bank and a few all-night restaurants. And even they seemed to suggest that it might be better were they abed and out of the storm.

A stray cat yowled miserably. On a side street the muffled roar of a motor slowly passed out of hearing. A bedraggled drunk, his cap pulled down over his eyes lurched into a lamp post right himself and moved on. The policeman eyed him for a moment and then turned his back.

Two men one heavy-set, the other a slender racing-tail type walked a long, hard deep in the pockets of their overcoats. They scurried up the steps of the bank that sent forth this sign: "Mercer National Bank, Open day and night" Cafe owners making their nightly deposits the policeman decided and sauntered along his rounds.

The two men swung open the bank door and walked over to the cashier's cage where on the desk rested a satchel. The teller, who had been standing in the enclosure going over some business with the cashier, looked up inquisitively. The heavy-set man reached into an inner pocket. Then suddenly the barrel of an automatic pistol loomed dark and foreboding. There was a curt command of "Hands up!" The teller opened his mouth as though to shout a warning his hand automatic barked again. The slender man reached into the pocket of the cork on a bottle of champagne. The teller caught his shattered wrist with a moan of pain. The cashier flung up his hands without further ado.

Hand it over! A burly hand pushed open the night air. An automatic whistled round, sending an armored car into immediate motion. Pop-pop-pop-pop! A hand machine gun blazed a screaming trail of death. A police car drove up in front of the bank. Five blue-coats jumped out and took up the trail on foot. Heads came suddenly forth from surrounding windows and then they were jerked back again as the crack-crack of the guns filled the air. Sleeping bums scurried like rats for the protecting shelter of the alleyways. Only the black shadow of a hooded car could be seen swaying drunkenly as it skidded down the street at breakneck speed closely followed by the armor ed car.

In the first automobile a slender figure bent tensely over the steering wheel his eyes set on the road ahead his face twisted in grim determination. Beside him covered the Sparrow huddled down on the seat, his body trembling his lips twitching in a frenzy of terror. In the rear of the car lying on the floor for protection the automatic that through the side curtains spitting an answering rain of bullets back towards the police car rode "The Mug." His heavy scarred face with its protruding lower jaw, took on an apish look in the light of blazing street lamps. "Git a move on! Aw fer Gawd's sake Lefty Shave'er up! The Sparrow was pleading piteously as a round of bullets from the trailing car shattered the side of a brick building. "Shut up happy! Lefty commanded from his position at the wheel never taking his eyes from the road. "Lead holdin' out Mug? He flung the words back over his shoulder.

Anhydremia

By Dr. ARTHUR L. FORSTER

During the closing years of the last century mothers considered themselves fortunate if their baby went through the summer season without an attack of anhydremia (the technical term for cholera infantum, or summer complaint). In those times babies died by the thousands. To day the condition is comparatively rare. However it is only through the greatest care that its occurrence is prevented. Were it to relax our watchfulness in the least, the disease would speedily become as rampant as it ever was.

Nature of Summer Complaint

Irrespective of the original cause which is an infection, the essential feature of the disease is a desiccation (drying up) of the body. The infection itself may be situated primarily in the gastro-intestinal tract due to the swallowing of tainted food or poisonous secretions from the air passages; or, it may be located in a certain point and impair metabolism. The most common locations are the sinuses or ears. Often the attending physician is unable to find the focal infection because it is concealed whereas the gastro-intestinal symptoms usually are prominent. However all factors which cause nutritional disturbances can be active agents in causing a state of anhydremia and anhydremic intoxication.

Features of the Disease

The most prominent feature in most cases is the diarrhea. This results in a depletion of the system of its water content and a reduced volume of blood. Associated with the diarrhea is an irritability of the nervous system. These combined factors are responsible for the other symptoms that develop in rapid succession through the short course of the disease.

The most severe type of anhydremia is the distressingly familiar cholera infantum. Here the stool becomes like rice-water and is almost continuous. The baby has a high fever, loses weight rapidly and his general appearance undergoes a decided change. All parts of the body cease functioning and unless prompt remedial measures are employed a fatal outcome is inevitable.

The Modern Treatment

All food is withdrawn from six to twelve hours. During this time enough water must be administered to counteract its loss from any and all causes. The infant will require one-fifth of its body weight in water during each two-four hour period. Water given just after the baby has vomited is often retained.

The hunger diet should not be continued for more than twelve hours but it produces striking results when sufficient water is given during this time. Nature is the best guide in this as under all circumstances, as shown by the fact that desire on the part of the infant for food is coincident with his increased ability to digest and assimilate food. When breast milk is obtainable it should be given as of course it has no superior. But when breast milk is not available a substitute must be resorted to. The infant will get along best if fed small amounts at frequent intervals—eight to ten feedings in twenty-four hours. At the same time the maximum amount of water must be administered.

The food itself should at the start be of the same strength as that given to a much younger infant. However such under-feeding should not be continued for too long a period. The tendency of these babies to slip into marasmus must not be lost sight of.

The danger of underfeeding is minimized by giving a food containing the least amount of raw fats, a small amount of casein and a proper quantity of sugar. Cow's milk as ordinarily modified, fails to fill these requirements. I know of no food that surpasses Lactogen in cases of this kind.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Habit or Disease

W.J.C. Writes: "I am a school teacher who is afflicted with a boy with a perpetually running nose."

"His parents being absent-minded I explained to them that it was very likely due to some disease of the mucous membrane of the nose."

"However I thought I'd ask you about it. Is there any remedy or must he be treated by a specialist?"

Reply: Does the boy use a handkerchief? Is it just a bad habit?

Is he careless and unclean in other respects?

If all these questions are answered in the negative the boy is probably suffering from a catarrhal condition that needs the attention of an ear nose and throat specialist.

Receipts for Articles

Children Can Eat

Mother writes: "It happens so often that I am told to give my baby this or that food. And as I think it is an imposition on my doctor to ask him to write the recipe for its preparation I am often at a loss how to prepare these things. The usual cook book gives some of these recipes but I am sure they are not intended for children's diet. Can you give me some help in this regard?"

Reply: Have your doctor write the Lactogen Laboratories, Inc. 589 East Illinois Street, Chicago, Illinois, requesting copies of the Baby Cook Book which is sent gratis to any physician. This little book contains 53 recipes. All the diet preparations that a child up to the age of six years is permitted to eat are included in this book.

BY MARJORIE ADAMS

Let's have a Mid-Summer Party! A lovely, cool, restful affair as pleasant for the hostess as for the guests. A luncheon bridge for twelve will be nice, I think.

Use lace runners, tray cloths or a delicate green cloth with napkins to match. Cloudy rose glass candlesticks holding tall green candles with a bowl of rose glass filled with pink roses, sweet peas, or any pink flowers in season, and ferns will be effective for decoration.

Use rose glass service plates and green bouillon cups, rose salad plates and dessert plates, green coffee cups, rose stemmed goblets and clear glass finger bowls.

An iced bouillon, a cool vegetable or molded salad, quite hearty, string potatoes and hot muffins, pistachio ice cream, petit fours and coffee will make a delicious menu. Green and pink patties and salted nuts are nice additions. Rose leaves in the finger bowls will complete the distinctness of the service. Combination place and score cards in the shapes of flowers may mark the places.

This luncheon is not difficult to prepare, requires a minimum of service, is effective in appearance and is most satisfying on a warm summer day.

DO YOU KNOW THAT:

(1) When varnishing floors if the can of varnish is placed in a pan of hot water and allowed to warm it is more easily used and shines brighter when dry?

(2) Covering the spring with oilcloth will prevent the mattress from becoming dusty?

(3) The mattress will be easier to turn if the spring is covered with oilcloth?

That radio may be used indirectly in treating disease, is the possibility suggested by recent investigations in the effect of waves of low frequency upon the human system. It had been noticed that men working a six-meter set in an eastern laboratory frequently fainted, or became ill. A fever was present in almost all cases of this kind and experiments showed that it was induced by the action of the waves in treating some diseases, fever is induced to kill germs that will not live at high temperatures, so it is thought that radio waves may be used for this purpose.

NATION BUILDING

(By Bishop G. E. Lloyd)

The following is the first of a series of articles from the pen of Bishop Lloyd, of Prince Albert, on the immigration question. While not endorsing the arguments advanced by Mr. Lloyd, The Star believes that the question is one upon which a lot of deep thought can be expended to advantage, hence the publication of the articles that all may weigh the problems advanced.

Editor: The Star,
According to the census returns and counting the population of Canada in the way the census does it, by radical origins, we see that in 1871 those of British blood or origin were 60.5 per cent. In 1881 (when I first set foot in Canada) it had fallen to 58.9 per cent. By 1901 the proportion of British blood had fallen still further to 57 per cent, and twenty years afterwards when the last national census was taken, it was only 55.4 per cent.

Those of French origin were roughly one half of the British and the foreign element in this country had risen from 8 per cent in 1871 to a little more than 16 per cent in 1921. In the last two years and a half there has been a tremendous rise in the number of these foreigners especially from central and southern Europe and it is this fact, brought about by the so-called "railway agreement" and the rigid enforcement of the U.S.A. quota restriction, which constitutes a nation problem for Canada both on the open prairies of the West and the cities of the East.

In the building of any new nation the first question must be, will it be homogeneous of one nature in its blood; or will it be heterogeneous a mixture of all nations, in other words a melting pot. Some newspapers in Canada are rather fond of using this idea of a "national melting pot" in their editorials, although on the very next page the same paper will warn every farmer to do the opposite with his pigs and cows.

A well known lawyer in Chicago has recently written a book of five hundred pages on "America, A Nation of Confusion." In this he shows that the American melting pot has been boiling for nearly one hundred years and has only succeeded in sending the original 47 per cent American stock to the bottom of the pot to be sneered at by every new-comer as a "melting pot" while the froth and bubble at the top has produced every kind of hyphenated-American keeping his feet and filling his pockets in America while his loyalties are in Italy, Slovakia, Ireland, Germany, and anywhere else, except in the States. His illustrations from New York and Chicago are very much to the point, and every Canadian measured of the "melting pot" idea should buy and read Edward R. Lewis' book published by Harper of New York.

I was a little more emphatic in my estimate of the effect of this "melting pot" idea on the national life of Canada and instead of "confusion" I called it "mongrel." Some persons took that to mean individual foreigners but the term was used deliberately to show what this nation will become, if the "melting pot," "open door" policy continues a "mongrel." Canada in comparison with a "British" New Zealand.

Apply the "melting pot" idea to the Canadian bull dog fifty per cent is going to be bull dog. The two hind legs will be French poodle. One fore leg will be Austrian wolf head and the other leg will be German, they are coming by the thousands. The tall will be Ukrainian and as that uses up 100 per cent of the population, the poor dog will have no inside. As the British Tommy in the trenches would say—nice dawg that, he ain't got no guts! That would be the heterogeneous dog, the product of the "open door" and the melting pot.

The essential question before Canadians to-day is this: Shall Canada develop as a British nation within the Empire or will she drift apart by the introduction of so much alien blood that her British instincts will be paralyzed? Is Canada to remain a homogeneous British nation like she was in 1901, or is she to become a second South Africa?

It is perfectly true that Canada can never be a really homogeneous British nation like New Zealand, because of the original French in Quebec with their language and customs. But we need not add to that inherent difficulty manufacturing more heterogeneous by deliberately bringing in these thousands of dissimilar foreigners to add to our problems.

England has paid dearly for her foolish but idealistic policy of the "open door" and two-thirds of her troubles to-day are caused by the invasion of floods of Continentals who abused her liberty and made it licentious.

The United States are seriously trying to repair their mistake of the "open door" and the "melting pot" but it is very late and their crowds of hyphenated-Americans will not cease to perplex for fifty years to come. And the rigid application of their remedy the Quota is causing our flood. Will Canada have the common sense to learn in time by these examples and refuse definitely to allow her fair British heritage to degenerate into "any man's land"?

SUNSHINE MEANS HEALTH
At this time of the year Nature's greatest restorative is working overtime for long hours each day the sun is pouring out his life-giving rays furnishing youth, health and energy to man and beast and plant.

Presently comes winter when the hours of sunshine are much abbreviated and when as a result of Old Sol's position in relation to our northern latitude the oblique rays have largely lost their beneficial powers. During the winter months many of our people and especially women and girls shut themselves up in their homes in an effort to escape the rigors of Jack Frost and in order to fortify themselves against that time it is essential to during the summer as much sunshine as possible.

Not infrequently do we hear women and girls complain that summer sun gives them freckles brown their faces and tans their arms and to escape these consequences they seek the shade furnish their faces with an extra coating of powder and cover their necks and arms. If they only knew the health value of the sun's rays and the necessity for providing against a shortage during the winter they would welcome the freckles and the tan as the greatest gift that Nature can bestow upon womankind at this time of the year

THE ANNUAL MENACE TO HEALTH
Our old enemy the House Fly is with us again. He never fails to come around when the warm weather arrives. To annoy people and to cause trouble seems to be his special aim in life. From the baby's face to father's bald head, to the milk picher and to the food are some of his journeys well known to all of us. Yet, in spite of this and possibly because he is seen too often, it is doubtful if any of us ever fully realize the danger and filthy ways of this common pest.

The house fly lays her eggs (120 at one time) in fresh horse manure. She prefers it, but she will use any heap of garbage or filth with a very short incubation (2 weeks) period it can be seen how rapidly flies will multiply unless they are controlled. Naturally the best way to control the fly is to destroy the eggs or maggots before their wings are developed and they can move about rapidly.

Why is it necessary to destroy flies and keep them from hatching? All flies can carry disease germs; they are all filthy in the extreme. The legs of flies are provided with a great many short hairs (100) or bristles and, as the fly walks over filth containing disease germs, some of these are collected and held by the hairs.
When the fly goes again to take a drink from the milk picher or touch some food some of the germs will be left behind in the milk or on the food.

When these are swallowed later with the food by the baby, or anyone else, they may cause diseases such as typhoid, diarrhoea, dysentery or other illness.

Experiments with the house fly prove that it can be best controlled by sprinkling the infested parts of the manure with a three per cent solution of Lyman's Disinfectant. One gallon of disinfectant makes 33 gallons of the solution and costs about 60¢ per year per horse. The solution should be applied about every second day or sufficiently often to ensure that all maggots are destroyed.

For the few that will escape this treatment a cone trap could be employed. Placed in a sunny place with tasty bait such as molasses and water it will account for most of those left.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK
by EDSON R. WAITE, Secretary,
Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce

George S. Hotchkiss, editor of the Doylestown (Pa.) Intelligencer, says:

"That every time you buy outside your home town you are injuring your own interest."

I know a big town, not far from two large cities, in which a few years ago there was not one really good store.

If you wanted anything you were obliged to go out of town to get it.

Something brought about a change and now the town has many first class stores and the people enjoy the convenience of getting anything they want within a few blocks of their homes.

They are increasing their conveniences because their patronage encourages the stores to improve in every way.

They are attracting buyers to their home town and building it up—and the greater part of the money they spend stays in the town.

They are furnishing employment for a large number of young men and women and enabling them to remain in their home town.

They have brought to an end one of the most destructive faults—knocking their home town.

In the end they get better prices, because outside the big cities
the overhead is less.

From knockers they have become boosters, because they are proud of their fine stores and want the world to know they have them.

Now for the other side:
Part of this change was brought about by judicious and consistent advertising by merchants in the home paper.

cloth moistened with a cleaning liquid or paste wipes off the trash

BEAUTIFUL as the Pontiac Six has been in the past—great as its per-

—today's Pontiac Six is even more beautiful, even more thrilling to drive! For, in keeping with General Motors' policy of progressive engineering practice, this lowest-priced General in style and equipped for even finer performance.

To the beauty of style of long, low bodies by Fisher, have been added the swagger touch of smaller, smarter wheels and larger tires, while new and harmonious combinations of Duco colors have been created. Mechanical advancements result in smoother performance and greater power than Pontiac ever offered before. And along with its more stirring response to the throttle, it continues to provide the stamina and long life for which it is famous.

Until you have seen and driven it you cannot

MILLION HOMES
TONIGHT

There are times when all a mother's love can't soothe a fretful baby. No way of telling just what's wrong, yet something must be done. Castoria time! A few drops, and Baby has dropped off to sleep. Yet this marvelous means of quieting a restless infant is utterly harmless. There is not one ingredient but what all doctors know and approve, and would let you give your baby every day in the week. In fact Castoria is a purely vegetable product. Gas pains, constipation, even diarrhoea can be dispelled in this same manner. Castoria is older than you are, but physicians still say "nothing better for babies."
An old-fashioned remedy if you count its years, but parents are old-fashioned who still raise babies without its aid.
And at least five million modern mothers keep it handy day and night, for twenty-five million bottles were bought last year! Buy yours now; don't wait until you need it.

TRY OUT NEW RECIPES

(BY BETTY BARCLAY)

Many say that the great American dessert is the pie. Big pies, little pies, one-crust pies, two-crust pies, tough pies, tender pies, pump pies and pies—everywhere, anywhere, one sees the pie it may be a lemon meringue, an apple, a rhubarb, a huckleberry or the very popular plum delicacy with raisins bursting through the upper crust. It may be a large family pie or a tiny workman's lunch pie that may be eaten and relished by one hungry male. But the pie has become a popular dessert with the average American.

Yet of late there seems to have been an invasion of puddings. In many homes the pudding has almost ousted the pie—particularly in hot weather. With the salad the fruit and the "balanced diet" the pudding has pressed its cause.

There are many reasons for this. First, the pudding is in most cases a very economical dish. A pie may cost as much as all the other foods served at the meal combined. A pudding may be made that will cost but four or five cents for a generous serving.

A pie often has a heavy indigestible crust. It takes time to prepare and requires considerable heat. With one pie and half a dozen in the family "seconds" are not in order.

The pudding may be as light as you wish it. It may take care of left-overs that would otherwise be wasted. It may be prepared easily, quickly and without discomfort on a hot day—eaten either hot or cold. "Seconds" on pudding bring joy to young hearts and do not deplete the family pocket book unduly. Fruits, milk cream and other balancing foods fit into the pudding as snugly as the hand of a debutante into the welcoming palm of a foreign Duke.

So serve puddings hot and puddings cold especially when the mercury sends you away from the fire and the finances are demanding conservation. Most of the usual pudding ingredients are always on hand in the pantry or refrigerator. Rise, cream, eggs bread crumbs flavoring raisins—seldom will you find it necessary to purchase more than one additional ingredient.

when you decide upon a pudding. Here are two puddings—one to be served hot and the other cold. Both contain raisins, which are so strongly alkaline that you need not fear acidosis even when you indulge in generous helpings. Both call for sugar, milk and butter—always on hand, and all desirable foods. Both are economical and both are easily prepared. What more could be asked for in a summer dessert?

RAISIN STEAMED PUDDING

(The Hot One)

1 1/2 cup sugar
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 egg
2 teaspoons baking powder
3/4 cup nectar raisins
1 1/2 cup milk
3 tablespoons melted shortening
Sift dry ingredients and add raisins. Beat egg add shortening milk and combine mixtures Beat to a smooth batter Pour into a greased mold covered tight and steam 1 hour. Serve with vanilla sauce which is made as follows:

1 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup flour
2 cups boiling water
1/4 cup butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
Cream butter with sugar and flour add boiling water, stir until smooth. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Remove from fire add vanilla and serve hot.

GAUTEMALA PUDDING

(The Cold One)

1/2 cup sugar
3 cups milk
4 tablespoons cornstarch mixed with one cup milk
1 cup nectar raisins
1 tablespoon vanilla
1 tablespoon butter
Caramelize sugar. Add three cups of milk slowly and boil gently. Caramel is completely dissolved. Add cornstarch dissolved in one cup cold milk. Add raisins and cook over hot water until thick and smooth, stirring constantly. But before removing from heat add butter. Flavor, chill and serve with unsweetened whipped cream. Enough for eight servings.

"Cabot II."

"You know, I think that since Cabot sailed from Bristol to discover Canada, somebody from Bristol should be included among the 50 young 'Ambassadors of Empire'. That is how this lad, Matthew A. Cabot, age 17, of Bristol, England, son of a former pit workman, gained his place among the young travellers whose itinerary brought them to Canada this summer aboard the S.S. Albatross. This summer about the S.S. Albatross to tour the Dominion from coast to coast under an unequalled Empire educational scheme, planned by the Allied Newspapers of Great Britain, the Canadian Line and the Canadian National Railways. Matthew had failed by a close margin in his examinations. As he made his exit from the scene of judgment, it occurred to him that the Cabot argument was his second hope.

Test Value of all Chemical Weed Destroyers

In connection with the campaign which has been undertaken with increased energy this season for the eradication and control of noxious weeds, every possible means of weed destruction is being tried out. In addition to the methods which have proved so effective in previous years a number of new agencies are being utilized and it is hoped that many of these will prove to be of value.

With the object of encouraging the use of these agencies which are effective and to determine which ones have real merit, the Field Crop Branch of the Department of Agriculture has undertaken a series of tests at a number of points in the province where various chemical weed destroyers and other methods of eradication are being given a thorough try out.

In the meantime it has come to the attention of the Department that firms promoting the sale of some of these chemicals are advertising that these materials are being used by the government. This is not correct. It may be pointed out, however, that until tests of a more conclusive nature have been made, the Department of Agriculture is not in a position to bear out the claims made for any of these treatments. It is hoped however, that some of them will prove to be effective and when this is clearly demonstrated the Field Crops Branch will make a statement to that effect.

Garage Fires And
How They Start

There are not many business occupations where indulgence in smoking and the thoughtless use of matches are more certain in time to invite fire than in a garage. But patrons are inclined to be careless and so, too, are employees. Constant handling of gasoline tends to dull mechanics into that form of disregard which prompts them "to take a chance." A worker in a Plainfield N.J. garage repeatedly warned not to smoke anywhere inside the structure deliberately lit a cigarette in the presence of his employer, dropping the match on the floor where it ignited a pool of gasoline. The flames spread almost instantly throughout the building which was completely destroyed.

While the habits of employees are or should be under the direct control of the garage owner or manager those of patrons are not so easily supervised. One motorist bearing every outward appearance of intelligence undertook in a Sheepshead Bay garage to investigate by the light of his match a flooded carburetor in his machine. He was not spared to attend the inquiry into the damage which cost beside his life $200,000 in destroyed property.

Matches in and about garages have however formidable rival in open lights as illuminants "light the way of fools along path to dusty death." Holding a lighted lantern while he peered into the tank of his truck "to see how much gas there was" a chauffeur made the journey a year or two ago likewise caused a fire loss record of six figures.

Cleaning a car with gasoline too, is a practice fraught with danger because of the vapors released. An Oil City, Pa., garage suffered a disastrous fire from this cause not long ago, while in a small New Jersey town recently a young garage employee who had been ordered to wash a sedan started in vigorously with a bucket of gasoline which he was applying freely when a blinding flash caused by a vagrant spark suddenly put a stop to his labors by removing him from the field of further usefulness.

Oil stoves and other small heating devices such as electric grills frequently are seen in garages, where they serve to keep hot for car washers and mechanics on night duty a cup of coffee or other refreshment. That these appliances in a garage constitute a real risk and should be prohibited needs hardly to be pointed out. If the deprivation of this mild stimulant is too keenly felt by employees there is always the thermos bottle to fall back upon. Since 1914 a clock in Dayton, Ohio, has been running without being wound by human hands. It is equipped with a thermal motor, consisting of a gallon tank filled with alcohol, a one-half-inch cylinder and piston with a ten-inch stroke. A rise in the temperature expands the alcohol, pushing the piston up with a series of weights weighing sixty pounds. A fall in temperature allows the weights to descend winding the springs in the clock movement.

WITH the superb ease of a thoroughbred that takes all in its stride, the "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet never falters in the most trying circumstances—proves its mettle on the steepest grades and in the face of the greatest obstacles.

The ruggedness of Chevrolet construction alone makes these things possible. There is no part of the engine—the chassis—of the body that was not designed primarily for rugged endurance—put to the test again and again on the General Motors Proving Ground.

As a result the "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet steadily climbs without a halt, the steep slopes of the Rockies, and ploughs its way through the deep mud and gumbo of half-made prairie trails. In whatever conditions it may be placed, the splendid ruggedness of Chevrolet remains loyal in the service of its owner.

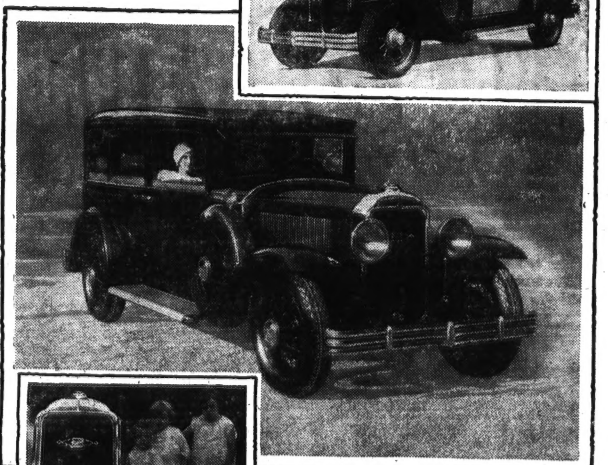

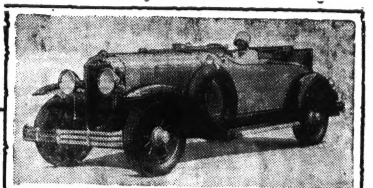

In long life has become proverbial—the very name Chevrolet is a synonym for strength that endures. The "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet—beautiful in form—luxurious in appointments—supremely rugged in construction—powered by the famous Valve-in-head engine—offers solid, enduring, trustworthy performance even under adverse conditions.

No matter what the roads—no matter what the weather—at all times the "Bigger and Better" Chevrolet stays on the job. The M.A.C. General Motors' own deferred payment plan affords the most convenient and economical way of buying your Chevrolet on time.

BRITISH STUDENT HARVESTERS

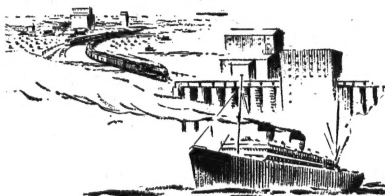

British university students seeking information, experience and adventure are coming to Canada to help with the harvest in the West this year and places for them are being found by the colonization department of the Canadian National Railways. If they are all of the type of the first four to arrive in the West both Canada and Great Britain would gain by their enterprise. The photograph shows the advance guard of four of these young men. From left to right, with the places where they are being stationed, they are: W. D. Harrison (Marcelin, Sask.); E. A. Corcoran (Weldon, Sask.); F. W. Beale (Carleton Place, Ont.); and J. D. "THE JAZZ SINGER," starring Al Jolson, is a Warner Bros. Pictures production of this novel. It is based upon the play by Samson Raphaelson.

'Oh I don't know' Lee was weary and tired He got up and walked about the room. He looked at his watch. 'Good Lord it's almost eight o'clock Look here. We're opening to-night We've got to get to the theatre You're not dressed or anything Thank God you don't go on right away This is a hell of a way to open a show The star and the producer sitting down on the East Side until it's almost time for the curtain to ring up Come on Get your things. We've got to beat it'

'Wait!' She caught hold of Lee and listened
'What's the matter?'

'They're praying. I want you to listen' The pair moved over to the window
'You are listening to a blackface comedian singing to his God Mary spoke in awed hushed tones 'Don't you see Harry, this isn't so far from Broadway? It's all in his blood really I can't you feel the same quality here that you felt this afternoon when he sang? Why he'll have to come back!'

'I hope so'
They stood there listening fascinated Finally Lee turned 'Come on! We've got to get out of here and up-town' He took Mary's arm and the two went closing the door silently behind them

The multi-colored lights on the Great White Way winked and blinked on the frosty air. Theatres blazoned their wares with vivid brightness of electricity and colored posters. Crowds hastened up and down Broadway—women in gleaming evening dress; men in formal black and white. Taxis honked and hooted their way through the maze of pedestrians. A steady stream of cabs drew up before the Winter Garden Theatre. They deposited their charges on the wide threshold of the vast pile of stone dedicated to the gaiety of all peoples. The theatre-goers in search of an evening of pleasure thronged the lobby and the foyer. Many of them stopped before the large cases filled with photographs. On one side reposed a full length portrait of Mary Dale in ballet costume. Opposite it a portrait of a blackface comedian with the gilt inscription 'Jack Robin'

Back stage the usual activities were taking place. The noise of shifting scenery, of mechanics and electricians battled with the chatter of the chorus girls lined up for the opening number. With regular precision the houselights went down and the curtain came up. The audience chattered vaguely for a moment and then settled into silence

In the wings stood the blackface comedian awaiting his cue. Beside him stood the golden-haired ballet dancer all set to go. They looked at each other and smiled The blackface comedian pressed the ballet dancer's hand

'Is there anything I can do for you Jack?' the ballet dancer asked the blackface comedian

'Yes, just root for me like you always do Mary' the blackface comedian laughed nervously and squeezed the ballet dancer's hand.
'Ouch' the ballet dancer laughed too 'That ring hurts—I'm not used to it' They both looked down at the gleaming diamond that glistened on the third finger of the ballet dancer's left hand 'There's your cue I'll watch from here The ballet dancer showed the blackface comedian out onto the stage

He fell in his shamble and oozed on The audience applauded vociferously The orchestra vamped the opening bars. He took up the verse of the song Then he ran into the chorus 'And I want you all to know... I want to go... Back to my mammy... I'm through wanderin' up—an down

I'm goin'—to—strike—that—ol'—home—town... Where—the—folks'll—gather—round... An greet me... I want—to—go... Back—to—my—mammy... The house looked black and dark from behind the footlights. There was only one person Jack could see. Up in the box sat Mrs Rabinowitz in heavy black silk. As the cry came from across the footlights the black ace comedian's mother wiped a tear from her eyes and smiled. The audience thundered its applause. Again and again Jack took her bows. But all he saw was the figure in the box He waved and blew a kiss. Mrs Rabinowitz looked about her proudly. That was her son Jackie she turned to Yudelson sitting there beside her and smiled

Jack ran off at last. There in the wings stood Mary, waiting. Her eyes were bright, and very, very big and blue. Her nose with that delicious little tip-tilt looked adorable. And her very red mouth with its sensitive contours had never seemed so delectable. They turned and strolled hand in hand back to the dressing rooms.

THE END

WINTER PIG SHELTERS

Sheds, cabins, pig pens and straw stacks have been used at the Dominion Experimental Station at Rothbar for winter shelters and the straw stack has been the most satisfactory. If it is not possible, however, to have a straw stack, one of the other shelters must be resorted to. A shed affords partial protection from the wind but enough straw must be provided to cover the pigs at least a foot and it must frequently be renewed. A cabin affords complete protection from the wind and if banked well with straw and provided with a heavy sack over the door is fairly warm but even this is better if kept nearly filled with straw. A pig pen at best is an expensive structure and must be carefully constructed or moisture accumulates on the ceiling and walls and sickness follows. A pig pen or some warm building such as a stall in a horse stable is necessary for a farrowing pen for early pigs but it is not necessary for growing or mature pigs. A most satisfactory shelter may be made by supporting a platform of poles about twelve feet square on posts three feet high and throwing a straw stack over it preferably of wheat straw. Such a shelter is comparatively inexpensive and requires no attention all winter, is dry, and is perfectly ventilated

CANADIAN
MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

CANCER

With the knowledge that we now possess, the cure of cancer is only possible when the disease is recognized early and proper treatment started at once.

One of the reasons of advising that every person should go to his family physician once a year for a Health Examination is to provide for the discovery of disease in its early stages and so permit of treatment at a time when if offers the best chance of cure. Otherwise it is left to the untrained lay person to decide for himself that he is in need of medical care.

For the particular benefit of this latter group it is necessary to print out the conditions which, if they occur should be considered as danger signals and should turn these persons in the direction of their family physician without delay. Everyone who experiences one of the danger signals is not developing cancer, but it requires medical skill to decide whether or not the symptoms which are present mean cancer

In its early stages, cancer is a local condition and if it is completely removed there will be no recurrence. If it is not removed it spreads to other parts of the body and may cause cancer in these other parts. This is a simple explanation of the need for proper early treatment

Any lump particularly in the female breast, any abnormal discharge any sore that does not readily heal, any wart or mole that changes in size or appearance are danger signals. Pain may not occur in the early stages. The person who thinks that the condition cannot be serious because there is no pain is mistaken, and as a result he may allow the time for cure to slip past.

Medical and surgical knowledge experience and skill are at the service of the public, but they must wait until the public decide to call upon them

Questions concerning Health addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered by letter. Questions as to diagnosis and treatment will not be answered.

CHILDREN HAVE FUN A-PLenty
IN NOVEL FIELD PLAY

ONE of New York City's expansive athletic grounds recently was the scene of a novel Field Day celebration. Participants in it were students of the New York Institute for the Education of the Blind

The handicapped youngsters proved themselves capable athletes in the different events. With the aid of various devices, they demonstrated that they could be made as happy as their more fortunate brothers and sisters blessed with good eyesight.

CLUBS

In practically all towns and communities there are now Service Clubs of various kinds, which, while perhaps devoting a great part of their energies to specific lines of endeavor, nevertheless have one outstanding predominating characteristic common to all. That is the establishing between man and man, whether competitor or not, whether rich or poor, whether of high or low degree in the community, a spirit of co-operation, good will and mutual helpfulness. It is becoming daily more evident that much more can be accomplished, and much better conditions established, if men will work in harmony; if they will help and support each other; if they will so conduct their affairs as to be reasonably fair to all with whom they may have business dealings.

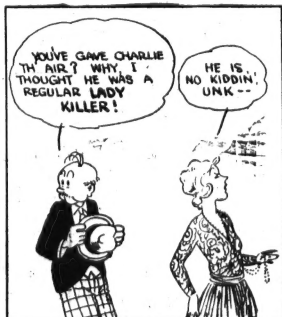

The principle can best be exemplified, so far as business and professional men are concerned, by extending to each other in any community such business patronage as we may have to hand out rather than to extend such favors to those from distant towns or cities. Give to your home business houses all the patronage you possibly can.

'HERO FOR A NIGHT'

SPEEDY AND FUNNY

"A Hero for a Night" next Monday Tuesday and Wednesday at the Elite Theatre is without doubt one of the fastest moving and laughable farces of the current season and was met with great success by the large crowds that have witnessed this picture.

The picture is a Universal and stars Glenn Tryon and Patsy Ruth Miller. Tryon portrays the role of a wise-cracking young taxi-cab driver in a summer resort who suddenly decides to enter an airplane race across the Atlantic Ocean. He takes flying lessons by mail and builds his own plane. Things reach a thrilling climax when he starts on his first trip with two passengers and is unable to land until the gasoline runs out.

Miss Miller appears more charming than ever and her performance leaves nothing to be desired. The portrayals of Burr McIntosh as the tired business man and Lloyd Whitlock as the scheming secretary are both very good. The direction is excellent from beginning to end. The story runs smoothly and was written by Harry O. Hoyt who also made the screen adaptation
